STORY OF STEEL SHOWN ON SCREEN

Descriptive Motion-picture of Steel Manufacture

"The Story of Steel" was the title of an educational film in six reels three of which were shown yesterday afternoon in the lecture theatre of the MacDonald Chemistry and Mining Building. This film which was taken through the courtesy of the American Steel Corporation, was procured from the United States Bureau of Mines.

The subject dealt with the story of steel from the ore to the finished product. The ore was first seen being dug from an open mine near Lake Superior and then through the various processes of transportation until it reached Gary, Indiana. There it was placed in blast furnaces and the impure iron was separated from the ore, yielding the by-products. The molten iron was then tapped from the furnaces into the mixer where the impurities were equalized throughout. The next step was to convert this into steel and the Bessemer, Open Hearth, and Electric methods were illustrated.

The steel was then poured into moulds, forming it into ingots, which were then ready for manufacture. The methods of making rails

WATER POLO WORKOUT WAS HELD YESTERDAY

The Rubinstein Bath was the scene of a snappy practice of the Water Polo team last night. Although there were not the usual number of men in attendance, those present made up the deficiency by working harder than usual, and also indulging in a lot of body work. It is believed that the popular form of amusement solving cross word puzzles is the reason for the small turnout.

The repairs of the K. of C. tank have been completed and the practice will be held there from now on. There will in all probability be a meeting of the Swimming and Water Polo Club on Friday and so the practice on this night will be cancelled. It is not quite certain as to the date of the next game, but it will be announced shortly in the Daily.

The manufacture of such things as nails, wire fences, steel posts, and wire rope was thoroughly gone into the importance of the last mentioned, to modern science and civilization was stressed, several examples being given.

There was some discussion as to when the last three reels should be shown and it was finally decided to present them on Friday Nov. 21. At

WHAT DRIVES NIGHT EDITORS TO SUICIDE

Pseudo-Experienced Reporters Who Offer Their Services

GIFTED-FRESHMEN

Reporters Assigned to "Cover" Sporting Fixtures

How oft in the still night has that puzzling question been asked, "Why do night editors go crazy?" We think that we have found the answer, which will be found in lines below. Not so long ago, in the time when the campus resembled a campus more than a skating rink, a youth who answered to the name of freshman was sent out to cover an Inter-Faculty Rugby game. This is his effort and we leave it to you.

In a game that kept the spectators on their feet from start to finish the team representing the Faculty of Music turned back the strong Faculty of Graduate Studies and Research squad by score 59-58. As can be seen from the score the game was very one-sided, the grads completely out playing their lighter opponents. The men on the research team have been putting in some heavy work lately and the Musicians have been confining themselves to light opera only which probably account for the big lead that the grads piled up.

The Musicians kicked off with the grads defending the deep end. The water was at a high temperature and made the contest all the more heated. In a scramble before the Musicians' nets Umpire O'Brien was injured and had to retire. Umpire Reilly taking his place. Play was resumed when the cheering died down and the contest was hot and heavy. The Rachmaninoff, the Musicians' star half swam forty-five yards around the end for a touchdown. The attempt to convert failed when the ball hit the referee, who had to be carried off. Umpire O'Toole taking his place.

The game dragged on until the fifth inning when the Grads pitcher showed signs of weakening. The next man up was passed and Shortstop Fritz Kreisler the next batter hit a home run into the left bleachers. Kreisler was out, however, at second base, trying to stretch his hit into two home runs. The Grads second baseman had to retire from the game when he collided with the runner, and the umpire was also injured. Umpire O'Malley took his place. The game was held up again when the outfielder of the grads had to change his horse as a result of a collision with the fence when he tried to take Rubenstein's long fly in centre field. He had previously broken his polo mallet on the umpire but continued game, until he lost his horse. Umpire O'Malley went in for O'Malley.

The police had to be called when it was found that catcher I. Ketchum had stolen second base. He was severely reprimanded and made to go back again to third. Then, the Grads quartet took a beautiful forward pass and ran 60 yards for a touch to tie the score. The umpire called the play off-side and was immediately carried off the field, O'Hagan taking his place. The Musicians seasawed up and down the field and although neither team had much advantage the Grads were getting in some hard volleys that the Musicians found hard to return.

The Grads went into the lead when the Research forward made a nice run of 65 yards. His total included eight punks, five blacks, and four scratches. The score stood 61 to 59 for the Grads and only six points to tie the score. The Grads lanky outfielder, Glover, did the trick a moment later when he banged out a homer with five on base (the game was a double header) and trotted round the track while the stands roared his approval.

Play now became rougher and four umpires were carried off in succession. They were O'Donnely, O'Brien, O'Rourke and another man who could not be identified so badly was he lacerated. The stands were in excellent humour and loudly shouted their praise. Play was resumed after afternoon tea had been served and the next batter for the Musicians, Paddock, whiffed a good count of eight wickets. It was good bowling, and each man made at least one strike and one spare during this string. The umpire was sent in as pinboy and the inevitable happened. He was carried off with a pin in his ear. O'Hare went on in his place. A moment later Horsofly, the Grads stellar forward

FRESHMAN OUTLINES REVISIONS

Should Pave Way to Emancipation of Students

GREATER COMFORT

Would Stress Tuition in the Social Arts

In view of the fact that student organizations are open for criticism and suggestions on how conditions could be improved a Daily reporter secured the following interview from a prominent freshman yesterday. His forceful and cogent expose is given verbatim so that nothing may be missed from his contribution to social uplift.

"I am a simple unassuming freshman just entering upon my college career, and although unsophisticated I am not letting myself open to libel by telling the public in general that I have a more worldly knowledge than the average sophomore.

"Coming from a thriving city like Three Rivers, I was surprised to find Montreal in such a state of dilapidation. If only I would be entrusted with the civic fund, your fair city would be cleaned up in a week and transformed into the 'Queen City and Metropolis of the World'.

"But it is College Welfare that I am mostly interested in the state in which McGill now finds itself is really deplorable and I can picture myself hailed as the man of the minute," having come to the University just in the nick of time to save it from a similar fate as that which befell Pompeii and to rescue the men students from a life of hardship and tyranny. The initial step of course, would be to appoint myself advisor to the administration, and thus be in a position to help my poor less fortunate, down-trodden fellow-students.

"My suggestions are:—
During the periods of Physics and Chemistry lab, the fatigue can be greatly relieved by serving tea at half-time.

The Arts Faculty should be considered enough to supply pillows during Philosophy lectures to help support the heavy heads?

Season tickets to the Venetian garden to be issued at the beginning of the collegiate year.

Another very serious matter that should be earnestly considered, is to see that when the professors make up their seating lists, they should first consult the students so as to make sure that each man will sit next to his best girl.

There is no reason in the world why the perfectly plausible reason of "I had to go to a show yesterday afternoon and so I couldn't attend your lecture," should not be accepted as an excuse by the professors.

The Arts curriculum should be altered so as to include some of the finer of modern arts such as:—

- 1—How to chew gum and retain its flavor (40 lectures).
- 2—How to drink liquor without becoming light-headed. (20 lectures with demonstrations.)
- 3—How to drive a car with one hand. Note:—Much home study and practice should be assigned for this course.
- 4—And one course is "How to be a successful lover though pie-faced" (20 lectures.)

The above suggestions are just a primary steps in making our college the best one in the Universe. After they are carried out, I will have several more

The Grads held a conference play and in the meantime the Musicians by good passing ran the length of the field for a touch making the score 59-58 in their favor. The next three men were retired on strikes and the game ended with out a change in the scoring.

CORNELL AND MCGILL CLASH ON SATURDAY

International Question to be Debated Internationally

STUDENTS FREE

Parliament Goes Into Session At 8:15 Sharp

For the first time, as far as can be ascertained, in the history of McGill Literary and Debating Society, a debating team from an American college is to come to McGill to participate here in the Mock Parliament scheduled for Saturday night, when the Cornell debating team together with the McGill men will discuss the pros and cons of the St. Lawrence deep waterways project.

In discussing the matter with a Daily reporter last night one of the prominent members of the society's executive explained the reason for the debate pointing out that it was the only night that Cornell could get here since one of the rules of that American university is that none of the students may leave college to participate in intercollegiate events except during the week-end. This leaves Saturday night as the only time when the event can be staged.

While students are being admitted free, as members of the Literary and Debating Society, a nominal fee of 50 cents has been imposed on the general public since there are certain expenses to be defrayed which must be met. Last year McGill sent a team to Cornell and this is the return meet whereby McGill must handle the various expenses which are being incurred.

The Hon. A. K. Hugesson who has acted as speaker at many of the McGill Mock Parliaments will again officiate in that capacity Saturday while Mr. MacDorm of the English department will be the clerk of the house. The parliament session will begin promptly at eight o'clock in order that there should be sufficient time to go through the entire programme as planned.

Grant Glasco, Prime Minister, will introduce the bill. The other speakers for his side will be Warwick Kelloway, B. A., of McGill and one of the Cornell men. On the Opposition S. Schwisberg, Law '26, and the other two Cornell men will be the speakers.

The McGill speakers are men who have distinguished themselves on various occasions here in the field of oratory. J. Grant Glasco is well-known, having been one of the chief speakers at the Mock Parliament when Imperial Preference was discussed, with the Cambridge debating team last September. He was exceedingly active at last year's Parliament sessions and rose quickly to the leadership of the party that is now in power. Warwick Kelloway, who graduated last May in Arts and who is at present doing post graduate work here, was in the inter-class debates last year and participated on several occasions at the Mock Parliament. S. Schwisberg has risen quickly in the Opposition ranks and drove home the final arguments at the last session when he condemned the coal subsidy.

It is pointed out that all men students are members of the Literary and Debating Society and are urged to be present in order that the event may go through as successfully as the meetings held on previous occasions. The attendance at the last parliament was not up to the usual mark, but it is the hope of the executive to see a large turnout of all students. Freshmen especially are urged to be present since it is to them that the society looks to provide the debaters that will represent the Alma Mater in years to come.

The Prime Minister will present the following resolution for its second reading: Resolved that "This House hereby affirms its belief in the wisdom, from a commercial and economical point of view, of improving in cooperation with the Government of the United States of America the navigation facilities of the St. Lawrence River, so as to permit ocean vessels drawing up to thirty ready for your approval, a little more radical than those already mentioned. In fact they will be such that put our university on the map as an institution of the students, by the students for the students.

JUNIOR PROM. PLANS NEAR COMPLETED

Committee Held Important Meeting Last Evening

TICKETS TO-DAY

Price of Tickets Has Been Reduced From Six To Five Dollars

The latest meeting of the Junior Prom. Committee held last evening witnessed the development of certain features in connection with the Juniors' Dance which will be of great interest to the Student Body at large and more especially to the Junior Year.

The matter of tickets was again the subject of discussion. At a former meeting it had been agreed that these should sell for six dollars. After much reconsideration and an assurance of a certain limited amount of help on the part of the Student Executive body, it was finally decided that they should be placed on sale at the reduced price of five dollars.

Although this will necessitate a slight curtailment in expenditure it will not affect the plans for elaborate refreshments which will equal those of former years.

In originality the Committee is even hopeful of surpassing in certain respects the efforts displayed in past proms. The reductions in no small degree due to the sympathetic acceptance of a proposal of the Students' Council, which is endeavoring to reduce the cost of all college functions of this nature. The proposal is in keeping with a policy recently adopted by this Council and approved of by the University authorities, who are not wont to interfere in student affairs as a rule. Yet the sanctity of this action cannot for nothing be approved.

Accordingly the Students may be prepared to have tickets placed on sale today at five dollar each. The demand for them was heavy even at the former price and they will doubtless sell very quickly at the lesser figure.

Many bewitching sketches for the Programme design were volunteered by the budding architects and these artistically inclined among the students body as a whole. From among these the Committee selected what was deemed the most charming. The decision called for much consideration owing to the many good suggestions which the competitions brought forth. For these efforts the committee expressed its sincere thanks to the contributors.

Representatives from Queen's and Toronto have been invited.

During the next few days the Committee will be busy disposing of the tickets and carrying on certain preliminary routine details. These are being taken care of with much deliberation and the greatest of care. All points to a successful Dance.

TRIBUTE PAID TO LATE R. K. JONES

Distinguished Toronto Citizen Sends Glowing Message Of Praise

That the recent tragic death of R. K. Jones, one of McGill's promising young graduates who passed away as a result of injuries sustained in a motor accident, has resulted in widespread sorrow, is evident by the many messages of sympathy and the numerous eulogies of his character and ability as a leader of economic and political thought among the younger generation, which are given out by men of national importance in Canada.

Colonel J. B. MacLean, the head of the MacLean publishing Company, and one of the most distinguished citizens of Toronto, has written to Professor Stephen Leacock in regard to the death of Randolph K. Jones, in the following terms:

"A chance article by him in 'The Financial Post' was the first I had ever heard of R. K. Jones, but it was so good, so sound, so British that I immediately began to investigate him. Some other articles followed and I came to the conclusion that here at last we had a young Canadian who would give us the leadership of British leadership, we needed. His death has greatly shocked me."

FROSH FAVOR OPPOSITION IN LARGE RALLY

Four Big Addresses Heard By Large Gathering

MUCH ENTHUSIASM

Opposition Victory Assured Speakers Claim

To celebrate the coming out of the Freshmen issue and the handing over of the press of the country to the freshmen of a famous university the Hon. Jack Spector, Chief Whip of the Opposition, the Hon. S. Schwisberg of the same party, and the Rt.-Hon. Bert Wells, leader, addressed one of the largest freshmen rallies in years, last night, on the campus, when upwards of one hundred freshmen heard a complete outline of the Opposition policy as well as a scathing attack against the party tactics of the Government.

"We have actually been forced to loan them one of our worthy members," the Hon. Mr. Spector declared. "The Hon. Mr. Kelloway will speak for the Government forces on Saturday, since they requested us to switch him—but his heart will be on our side of the house and so will his vote."

Mr. Spector waxed eloquent as he told of the whirlwind campaign he had just come from, after conducting the forces of Lafolette to what was nearly a victory. "The east of the United States is dead against deep waterways. They want the St. Lawrence. To remain as it is, and not as the Government wants it to be," the speaker urged amid the hoarse cheer of the Frosh.

The Hon. Mr. Schwisberg told of his flying trip to England where he had spoken on behalf of the Labor party which was nearly victorious. "To try and deepen the St. Lawrence," he said, "would be to work against the law of nature. Nature has decreed that the river shall be as deep as it is and to try to bother the peaceful bed of the river is not in accordance with the best interests of science. Science must go hand in hand with nature and not against it." Mr. Schwisberg closed with an eloquent plea for the cooperation of the freshmen members of the house in this all-important question.

The Rt.-Hon. Bert Wells reached some of the loftiest notes possible when he most eloquently pleaded the cause of the Rationals. He told the freshmen of their duties as honest members of Parliament. He pictured the St. Lawrence deepened with ocean steamers rushing up and down marring the picturesque Quebec Landscape. He painted New York sinking into insignificance and closed with a solemn message that if the Government did not go down to defeat he would undertake such a whirlwind attack as would ensure a decided Rational victory when the people were again called upon to vote at the next election.

Replying for the Freshmen Arthur B. Frosh, B.H.S. '28 pledged their heartfelt sympathies and assured the Rationals that they would be out one hundred per cent on Saturday night to vote Rational.

ELABORATE SMOKER FOR AMERICAN CLUB

U. S. A. Students Expected In Large Numbers To-night

Students of the U. S. A. are expected to turn out in large numbers for the smoker to be held at the McGill Union to-night at 8 p.m. A very elaborate programme for entertainment augurs well for the club.

The executive has been working hard to make the American Club an active organization and asks for the cooperation of students from across the line who are attending this University. It is the duty of every good American to give this club his utmost support since it is an organization that keeps the student from U. S. A. in touch with the immediate economic and political conditions of his country besides strengthening the spirit of friendship existing between fellow American citizens.

Smokes, eats, music, and miscellaneous interesting entertainment will all be featured to-night in the grill-room of the Union.

THE FRESHMAN ISSUE

While budding journalists assembled in the outer offices of the Daily are receiving instruction in editorial writing, we sit in the inner sanctum behind walls of paper-like thickness through which the ethereal waves pass unobstructed to vie with the phone for our distraction—and woo the Muses in vain for some deep inspiration whereby to dedicate in fitting terms this issue of the Daily, which custom has caused to be garbed in verdant hue.

In a moment of mental aberration, moved by profound and noble sentiments towards a group of potential nation-builders, we had about launched upon a lengthy panegyric of the neophytes who supposedly seek in all seriousness the pursuit of lofty ideals destined for the betterment of mankind. But we refrained—partly from fear of not attaining their conception of themselves, partly because we feared their supercilious scoffing for taking them so seriously.

Did we but know the intentions of the originators of a Freshman Issue of the Daily, we might attempt to expound his skein of thought. Was it meant to soothe the bruised sensitiveness of the freshman but recently emancipated from the jibes and buffetings of inconsiderate upper-classmen, by according him the special consideration of the fourth estate; or was it intended as a Te Deum to the Fates which guided his footsteps to swell our ranks? without achieving callousness, the present day freshman ostensibly attired in a hastily acquired cloak of worldly wisdom, has attained a power of adaptiveness which turns the first of these possible efforts into wasted energy. The fledglings probably don't see why we should dedicate anything to them—neither do we. They are altogether too healthy and virile for their presence to require any artificial publicity.

It has become a tradition for the Daily to single out for special consideration the senior and the freshman years. By an extra issue just before graduation, the Daily forms the last connecting link that binds the prospective graduates to undergraduate activities. Perhaps it is in anticipation of the fact that some freshmen may never benefit by that issue, that in its magnanimity it seeks to reach them before they are swallowed by the whirlpool of mid-term exams, never to return. So, steeped in hoary tradition from which we dare not depart, we dedicate this monumental work to the Freshmen in recognition of their stirring qualities and their refreshing outlook as yet untainted by the conceit of the sophomores, the restraint of the juniors and the dignity of the seniors. May they live long enough in academic halls to write editorials for future Freshmen Issues.

CONDENSED COMMENT

The opinions expressed by our correspondent are entertained by the majority of "old timers". With all the vicissitudes that beset him, and all the shortcomings attributed to him, the freshman yet lives in a world that has lost none of its freshness or glamour. It is tragic but true that in the process of acquiring knowledge and dignity, the freshman sacrifices the ability to be thoroughly interested in experiences that seem insignificant and colourless to his sophisticated senior.

OLD SCOUT'S CLUB ELECTS OFFICERS

Monthly Meetings to be Held in Strathcona Hall

The question of whether the club should continue to function, in view of the numerous other activities claiming the time of the students was discussed at the first meeting of the Old Scouts of McGill at Strathcona Hall. It was felt by all present that the club filled a real need in keeping the old scouts in touch with all the latest developments of the movement, and discussing a subject which all had a deep interest.

It was also decided to hold monthly gatherings on the 1st Tuesday of each month beginning Dec. 2nd, and in order to overcome the difficulty of time, they will be held from 6 p.m. to 7.30 p.m. and will be preceded by supper for which a nominal fee will be charged.

The following officers were then elected:

President—J. E. Elkinan
Vice-president—W. J. Whitehead
Sec.-Treas.—R. J. Smith

It was unanimously agreed to invite Mr. E. R. Patterson, Provincial Secretary of the Boy Scouts Association, to retain the position of Hon. President. It is hoped that Mr. Patterson will be present on Dec. 2nd to lead the discussion. If this is possible all Scouts are assured of a pleasant evening.

For the benefit of new comers to the University it may be said that the club is open to undergraduates who have been or who are now connected with the Scout Movement. The objects of the club are to help old scouts maintain interest in the movement, and so far as time and University duties allow to assist the Local Association when possible. It is felt that there are many scouts in the various Faculties who would welcome these meetings and the executive are planning to make them of real scoutly value.

A DREAM

Last night I dreamed that I was born
A hundred years ago
In England, aye, in London town
Near where the Thames doth flow.

I was a stately courtier
A stutling to and fro
And bowing to all the ladies
In the mode of long ago.

Silken breeches' cased my thighs
And I wore a velvet coat
Creamery places, brought from Flanders
Decked about my wrists and throat.

All the ladies simply loved me
Tried to snare me with their wiles
But my greatest source of interest
Was the ever-changing styles.

They all asked me to their parties
Theatre-dinner or the ball
But their show of great affection
Did not worry me at all.

Any joy I had I was led
Back to this age I was led
By the clang of my alarm-clock
Which was standing by my bed.

RADIO ASSOCIATION TO SEE LA PRESSE

Yesterday's Trip to CKAC Postponed One Week

Owing to a slight misunderstanding the Radio Club was forced to postpone its inspection of the La Presse Broadcasting Station C. K. A. C. for one week.

About a dozen members met at the Physical Building at 5 p.m. yesterday and journeyed to the St. James St. Printery, although owing to the absence of the official in charge, the broadcasting room could not be explored, the men were courteously received by Mr. J. P. Callaghan. In a few words he gave such an outline of the wonderful tasks of the modern machinery in use in the plant, as to interest everyone intensely. His invitation to see the workings of the newsprint machines and Station C. K. A. C. in action was immediately accepted. After careful considering it was arranged that the club should meet at the La Presse main entrance on Wednesday, the 26th, at 2 p.m. sharp.

The Radio Association holds similar excursions to the local points of interest about once in three weeks. Interesting lectures are listened to and code practices are held at given hours. The club is organizing an exchange whereby members will be able to sell or trade the parts for which they have no immediate need. On Wednesday next from Station 10 A.U., the property of one of the members, a programme of classical musical numbers will be broadcasted.

SIR ARTHUR CURRIE IN OTTAWA MONDAY

Will Speak at Civil Service Institute Luncheon

On Monday next, the Professional Institute of the Civil Service of Canada at Ottawa will have as its guest of honour Sir Arthur Currie, who will speak at their Annual Luncheon.

Sir Arthur has made an intensive study of the problems of the civil service, and it will be recalled that he wrote an article which appeared in a recent number of MacLean's Magazine on the need of a "Super Civil Service," which attracted wide interest.

CORRESPONDENCE

The Daily is not responsible for sentiments of letters published in the correspondence columns. Signed communications from graduates, undergraduates and members of the faculties will be placed in print if they are not of too great length.

Correspondents are requested to observe the unwritten law of the newspaper office—that they write upon ONE SIDE of the paper ONLY.

No communication will be admitted in this column without the name of the writer being attached, not necessarily for PUBLICATION.

The Editor,

McGill Daily,

Dear Sir:—

My, but it would be great to be a Freshman all over again and have the feeling that you're "steeking to the ship," the feeling that nothing new in Freshman life is new to you, and the feeling that you are green yet not so green.

My, but it would be great to be a Freshman and what is more, a Freshman honored among the Freshmen as one who would have the courage of his Freshman convictions.

For two whole years it has been my pleasure to labour under Freshman impressions. For those two years I have seen the Green Edition cross the fence of publication; and for each of these editions I have pointed as a Freshman—Yes, and rather proud.

When we see this Green "sheet" slip from the reeling presses into the lecture room, on to the lecture floor and then into the lecture basket, a feeling comes over us that the world would be the happier for a world of Freshmen with green ideas, smiles unstrained from knowledge, and trite chatter over the trite things that really count.

And then you see none of us would be disillusioned. A Conversat would always be a Conversat. Mock Parliament would always delight us. Lectures and lecturers would always amuse us. Girls would always be young, and being young, would smile.

Yes it would be great to be a Freshman all over again and again and again—grey on our temples but no pains in our backs, short in our breath but never breathless—What would I give to be a Freshman all over again?

Your, etc.,

WRESTLING CLUB IN HEAVY PRACTICE

Good Turnout in Strathcona Hall Yesterday

The Wrestling Club held another strenuous workout last evening in the ball room at Strathcona Hall. Coach Smith gave the thirty men present sufficient exercise in puffing and blowing, with the object of rounding the fellows into shape for the Tyro Meet.

Beginning promptly at five o'clock, the squad was paired off and put through a stiff drill introducing several new holds and counters. The various individuals alternately took the offensive and defensive part of the same throw. Coach Smith picked out flaws and corrected them with a word or two or a demonstration as was required. When the new holds and throws had been fairly well mastered, there was a short period allotted to a rapid review of holds both new and old.

The squad was classified according to weight, and then ensued a miniature wrestling tournament, in which the experienced men grappled first in short bouts while the novices looked on. The new men each had a chance to try their skill with suitable opponents of their own weight. The new men are naturally not as quick and smooth-working as the veterans of last season, but there are many who are demonstrating the spirit which brings success.

While there were between thirty and forty out yesterday, some of the heavyweights are lamentably weak in point of numbers. The heavyweight class in particular could do nicely with a

Since the cave man type of initiation is on the decline, it is suggested that the above would be a more proper means of taming the freshman.

LECTURES TO BE GIVEN IN HISTORY

Eminent English Historians Deliver Series

This session the usual public lectures of the History Department will, with the Principal's sanction, be given by eminent English historians over on this continent this year.

Similar lectures were delivered last year and proved very popular. They were extremely interesting and were the attraction for large audiences.

The first of the series, this year will be given at the R. V. C. on Thursday, November 26th, at 5 o'clock. This lecture will be by Professor A. F. Pollard, F. R. S., and his subject will be "Liberty and Equality."

Professor Pollard is Professor of History at London University and Chairman of the School of Historical Research, and is also a Fellow of A. I. S. O. College, Oxford. He is a well-known author on constitutional and imperial subjects. During this term he is giving a course of lectures at Columbia University.

This is a welcome announcement to those who followed last year's lectures by Professor Waugh. This year's series should prove equally interesting and a large attendance is looked forward to; the lectures are free and all are cordially invited.

JOURNALISTS AT "DAILY" MEETING

Messrs. Ghewy and Caron From "Star" Heard

Messrs. Ghewy and Caron, of the Montreal Star, gave most interesting talks to a well-attended meeting of the Daily Staff last night.

From seven-thirty onward, "scoops" and editors, both male and female, began to gather and when Mr. Ghewy began his address seating capacity was at a minimum. The "Star" man spoke from extended study of and experience in the newspaper game, on the points which make a "cut" reporter valuable.

The most essential of all is discipline. Here, as elsewhere, the man must obey all orders and must keep himself in constant touch with the "desk". Then there is that important element known as "news sense" by which many a worth-while story is uncovered. Explanation was given on the writing of the "human interest" story—the use of that happy faculty that sees something absorbingly interesting in an ordinary, colorless topic.

Mr. Caron an old-time worker on the "Daily" told of the value of journalistic experience in the training for the business or literary field. From the first day the newspaper world proves unusually attractive and more and more are drawn into it, many making the work their occupation for life. As a final word he exhorted the reporters to stick with the old "Daily" as long as they found it at all possible.

Numerous queries were answered to satisfaction. "Woman's place on the Paper" was shown to be of real importance, though there were a few limits which should not be passed.

The serving of refreshments satisfied the more materialistic side of the hard-workers but not to the detriment of the mental for the two speakers were kept on the receiving end of a series of questions long after the motion of adjournment was passed.

SMOKER TO-NIGHT FOR WESTERN CLUB

All Students From Provinces To West Invited

The Western Club will open its activities with the smoker to be held in the Music Room of the Union this evening at 8 o'clock. Sir Arthur Currie the Honorary President of the Club and a former Westerner has expressed his intention of being present.

While enjoying the free smokes the members will be kept busy with some important business and discussions. There will be elections to a few executive positions vacated by resignation and of representatives from the several provinces. Opinions will be passed as to the form and number of future meetings and the actual program for the year will be laid down.

An important item for consideration is that of the annual Maritime-Western dance, which will take place before the Christmas holidays if a suitable date can be selected. Last year's dance was one of the most successful and enjoyable affairs of the social season and this term's event will undoubtedly uphold the high standard.

The Western Club is open to all McGill men hailing from the provinces to the West of Ontario. There is a large number at the University and all are cordially invited to take this chance to become acquainted with one another and to enjoy a fine informal evening.

TELEPHONE CALL AND CALLS

The signal system of announcing telephone calls is indeed an unusual one—it should certainly be investigated by all visitors to McGill, for its ingenuity is nothing else.

The maid maid whistles once for a girl on the first floor, twice for the second, and so forth. It is most diverting to be signalled for a call, when your room is on the fourth floor, and your name is on an unusual one like Smith;—you run golly down for flights to hear an eager voice in your ear say, "Oh is that you Alice?" your name being Anne, you then have another four whistles sent through the pipe, thereby causing all the doors on the fourth floor to open hopefully—and you ding your disappointed self upstairs again.

Sometimes, however, luck is with you. And the result is for you—possibly the following conversation ensues:—

Man's Voice "Hello, is this Miss Smith?"

Smith "Yes, this is Miss Smith."

Man's Voice "Miss Anne Smith."

Smith "Yes."

M. V. "I'm afraid you won't know who I am but I know someone in Oshkosh who knows you."

F. In Oshkosh my home town—how thrilling!—Who is it that knows me?

M. V. "Oh, I promised him that I wouldn't tell you his name until I had met you."

F. "That seems rather odd."

M. V. "Yes it is funny, isn't it?"

F. I'm sorry, but if you can't tell me his name or your I shall have to ring up!"

M. V. "Oh I can, tell you mine, but it won't do any good because you don't know me."

F. Indignantly—"Sir—I believe you have made a mistake."

M. V. No—I haven't this is Miss Smith isn't it?—Just—

ARTS SENIORS HOLD IMPORTANT MEETING

C. E. F. Jones was elected by the senior year in Arts to be their representative on Arts Dinner Committee, at an important business meeting of the class held yesterday noon. The President C. D. Everett presided.

The question as to whether the class should enter a team in the Indoor Basketball series was discussed and it was decided to appoint C. A. R. Armstrong to look after the team for the year. The question of entering a basketball team was also brought up but was shelved for the time being till after the Freshman-Sophomore series was finished and the senior years series drawn up.

A resolution was also passed instructing the secretary to send a letter to Mr. A. G. Robt. the President of the class in 1923-24 and who is now in the mountains recovering from an illness, expressing their best wishes for his speedy recovery and the hope he would soon be able to be back at college.

The treasurer announced that some of the members had not paid their dollar ($) class fee yet and requested that they do so immediately.

MEDICAL BANQUET ON FRIDAY, JAN. 23

To Exceed Last Year's In Splendor

On Friday, Jan. 23rd, 1925 the Faculty of Medicine will hold their Annual Dinner in the Salle Doree of the Mount Royal Hotel, according to a decision arrived at by the committee last evening.

Extensive plans are being arranged to make this annual dinner even a greater success than last year. A prominent member from a large Medical research institution is being invited as the speaker of the evening. It will be remembered that at the 1921 Banquet Dr. George S. Vincent of the Rockefeller Foundation was the guest of honor, and one of the main attractions of the event.

Besides an orchestra several novel entertainment "stunts" are being arranged by the committee, and much thought and labor is to be expended on decorations. The Salle Doree of the Mount Royal Hotel is ideal for a large dinner and the dinner itself will be a memorable one.

Those in charge of the various divisions of the work are:—

Chairman:—Sydney Harris.

Publicity:—Wall.

Decorator:—P. Barton.

Tickets and Seating Arrangements:—P. Michael.

The Dinner will not be strictly formal.

A Puppy Dog's Idea Of Heaven

I'm just a little puppy dog—Like me there's many more I love to run and tumble And roll upon the floor.

But I've ideas 'bout Heaven, A puppy Heaven? Yes, And if I'm a good puppy I'll go someday I guess.

In my puppy Heaven There's little boys who play So nicely with us puppy dogs And don't take our bones away.

There's Grandmamma's with candies To pet us every day And sisters, aunts and uncles Who never tire of play.

There's bones, and meat, and goodies But they never give us pains—There's lots and lots of kittens To chase up all the lanes.

But best of all, in Heaven There's my Master's fond caress And "if he couldn't be there I'd stay on Earth I guess."

CHORAL SOCIETY TO ELECT OFFICERS

Director Stressed Necessity of Individual Work

During the intermission of the practice of the Choral Society in the Conservatorium of Music last night it was decided that at the next regular practice officers for the ensuing year would be elected.

In spite of the fact that last night was not the regular night for practice there was a very encouraging number present. Mr. Clapperton, who is directing the singing of the club, urged upon the members of the Society the necessity of individual and independent work. "Depend on your self for your leads and not on your neighbour," he said.

The Society is well under way now and everything points to a most successful year. There is still time for new members to join. We hope that this formed society will receive the full support of the Undergraduate-body. Any who may be desirous of joining are requested to be present at the practice Thursday evening at 8 o'clock.

Argument doesn't convince

TASTE in tobacco is a matter of personal preferment. Is that not so?

Therefore argument is useless.

Take Old Squire, for instance. It's a burley tobacco with a mild and fascinating flavor—appealing immensely to most men.

But do YOU like it?

Ah—there's the point.

But accept our word for this: Old Squire is the finest grade of burley tobacco, selected, blended and aged by Tuckett's, and has this great point in its favor—it will never burn your tongue.

OUR MOVIE CRITIC

The bill at the "Ridout" this week is everything a bill could be under the circumstances. The feature picture "Asperin" a screen adaptation of Bayer's best seller of two seasons ago goes on a big.

The story concerns the struggle of a poor little jazz-crazed flapper who after the amuse and romance of the courtship is ever is compelled to adapt herself to an existence as the wife of a foreman in a mouse trap factory. She finds solace in the understanding sympathy of one Phillip Decan, globe trotter, student, gentleman adventurer, and stock holder in the mouse trap concern. From these elements the plot develops.

Miss Behaviour gives a remarkable portrayal of the poor little, etc., and if we are to believe her press agent, she wears more than twelve pounds of powder during the filming of the production.

Al. Asker is his manly self in the role of the stolid, respectable mouse trap foreman and incidentally presents a striking interpretation of the professional rat killer at his best. Manon Rovarro alone, fearless sheik of sheiks that he is doesn't seem to be there at all. Perhaps it was the powder he must doubtless have swallowed. Most of the time he seems gasping for air and once when he turns two hand springs, following a clinch, the effort is highly ludicrous. We hope for better work from him in the future. The picture is however, on the whole good entertainment and after all one can always sleep.

Plasterblams are certainly a novel feature in the programme and we see great possibilities for them in the future. In fact, we can see all sorts of thing flying towards us. I'm imperfect in this invention however made itself apparent last evening, much to the disgust and discomfort of His Honor, Judge Halitosis. One of the figures on the screen projected proved to be an egg of rather questionable character in the direction of the right front box which the Judge was unfortunately occupying.

At an early hour this morning His honor was reported to be resting comfortably. Taking it all in all, the effect was highly realistic (we mean the Plasterblams.)

A charming diversion in the form of a dance number was presented by the Roland Slide Company. The Company in their striking costumes, stocking-like garments reaching neck high, present a widely picturesque and multi-colored spectacle (a special constabulary having been previously sworn in to hold the stage doors against all comers). The Starland Symphony is deserving of more than passing mention due to their inebriated condition apparent during their rendering of the Overture. Their interpretation of William Tell was indeed most noticeable. Professor Discord, the conductor, is certainly to be congratulated.

A so-called news reel and a comedy complete a remarkably well balanced programme, and summing up the bill; it may be rightly acclaimed quite an unusual show.

BOOTH TARKINGTON LAUDS COLLEGE MEN OF TODAY

That the college man of today takes athletics, football in particular, more seriously than in his time, was the opinion of Booth Tarkington, as expressed through the columns of the Daily Princetonian, following an interview with the popular novelist. The great American author was a leader in undergraduate life while at the Jersey university, and he speaks from his own experience. Relating to scholastic conditions, he said: "I think we had a very easy time compared to what is demanded of the students today."

Mr. Tarkington observed that, while changes in college do not probably seem so striking to him as to some one who has not been back so frequently, yet they are many and great. In regard to the difference in football which now occupies every one's mind, the attitude of the undergraduates is the most noticeable. "We were more depressed by defeat and more elated by victory than the students are now," he said, and counts this a point in favor of the present generation because it is a more sensible way to take the game. "While we considered Princeton a disgraced and dishonored place when we were defeated," he continued, "it only urges the team on to greater effort now."

The eminent author still seems to enjoy football greatly in spite of the many changes in the game, although he asserted that it could never be as interesting again as when one is an undergraduate. He added that he could find no enthusiasm now for a game in which Princeton did not take part. The present system of organized cheering in a body is a great departure from the customs of the "nineties."

BASKETBALL SQUAD WORKING EARNESTLY

Eliminations will be Made at Friday's Practice

Settling down to the more complex formations and tricks of basketball Coach Moore put his thirty-odd men through a drilling yesterday afternoon at Molson's Hall. Last Friday eliminations were made and the original squad was cut down to half its size, so as to allow fuller scope and greater freedom to the coach in determining the ability of the individual players. About thirty were left and these are the ones attending practices this week. On Friday however, an additional cut will be made and those surviving will more or less be the nucleus of the college teams. Two teams are to be chosen, one Intermediate B, and one Junior Team. These play in the City and District Basketball Leagues.

Yesterday the coach concentrated to some degree on correct passing and dribbling underneath the basket. This is fundamental to a clear knowledge of the game and it is necessary that every man master it. The latter and greater part of the practice was spent in having the men get on to the various formations which will be used throughout the season.

The first League game is only a few weeks away and it is the purpose of the coach, as soon as the team is picked, to arrange for practice games with North Branch Y. M. C. A., M.

In former days, according to Mr. Tarkington, any one would get up in the crowd and lead a cheer, or the fans would call for some one. "The cheering is about as noisy now, but it was more spontaneous before. We yelled when we wanted to and when the game made us, whereas the yelling is done now when the leader specifies."

"It is harder to stay in college than it used to be," he continued, turning to another side of college life. "The curriculum is quite different and you have to be more of a scholar now. I think most alumni of my time are very glad to have been here when they were, and would have little hope of staying here under the present standards." —Pennsylvanian

JUST A THOUGHT.

All in a pensive mood I came
Upon an open country plain.
And near a lake of sparkling blue
Bright daisies in cluster grew.

Their dainty heads they humbly bowed
To a neighbour tall and proud
Who grew aloof with haughty mien.
The grace and splendour of a queen.
But overhead the sky was gray,
A mighty storm there came that day.
The wild wind whistled loud and long
Singing the strain of a merciless song.

On the morrow morn to the plain I came,
And saw the daisies once again
They had clung together and away—
ed as one
And thus the battle had been won.

But the splendid flower which grew alone
On that bright morn lay withered and and blown
With broken stalk and petals strewn.
Alone it lay in total ruin.

Moneyed Hens.

One of our newly-rich was showing a friend around her "estate." Presently they came to the poultry run.

"Do your hens lay?" asked the visitor.

"Oh yes," was the reply; "they can lay. But for people in our position it is quite unnecessary."
